B. Cross-Cultural and Well-Being Assessment

1. The Japanese diet consists mainly of rice, noodles, fruit, fish, meats, high protein soybean products (miso, tofu, etc.), vegetables in season, tea, pickles, and poultry. Do you have any special dietary constraints? Note: Severe dietary restrictions (i.e., vegetarian or multiple food allergies) could make it difficult for us to place you with a host family.

2. Living within a family can be difficult at times, even in one's own culture. How adaptable are you? Are you ready to take on the challenge of living by someone else's cultural rules? Do you think that you will be able to accept with grace and good humor the awkward moments as you adjust to Japan and your host family? Do you have any special concerns or needs which you hope your host families will take into consideration?

3. There are important restrictions on your Japanese visa. Some English teaching and other forms of employment are legal; others forms of employment can be a violation of Japanese law. It is your responsibility to understand the appropriate laws and to conform to them. Do you anticipate any problems complying with such laws?

4. By law, international students are prohibited from participation in political demonstrations and from possession or consumption of illegal drugs (marijuana, etc.) Do you anticipate any problems complying with Japanese laws? Please note that any involvement with drugs will lead Japan Study to withdraw its sponsorship and will require your immediate departure from Japan.

5. Living in another culture, especially in an urban setting, can involve risks and inconveniences. For example:

- You are likely to spend an hour a day walking in all weather conditions.
- You are likely to encounter new traffic signs and patterns.
- Commute times are at least 1 hour each way. Boarding or exiting trains/subways can be confusing.
- Alcohol is readily available and can easily be abused.
- Certain neighborhoods or settings can be dangerous.
- Interpersonal relations (e.g., dating) can develop in unfamiliar ways.
- Familiar medicines may not be available.
- Learning to use a second language can be emotionally trying.
- Communicating with doctors in Japanese can be challenging.
- You will have limited access to your normal personal networks and support groups.

Do you anticipate having trouble adjusting to any of these risks and inconveniences?

6. Is there anything else the program administrators should know about you in order to facilitate your stay in Japan? Please use additional paper if necessary.

I certify that all responses made on this form are true and accurate to the best of my knowledge and I will notify Japan Study hereafter of any relevant changes.
